PLEASE LET US GO AND PLAY.

While working at my desk today, I started my little children say, "Mother, we could go before my hair had turned to gray." Before long wrinkles creased my brow."Please, mother, do not keep us now, But let us go and play!"Their pleading voices came to me. From the adjoining chamber, where both wife and children I could see, When seated in my easy chair. She said, "Mother, we could go before my hair had turned to gray.""Please, mother, do not keep us now, But let us go and play!"Their mother here, until my lips can comprehend that they but strive themselves when they long for toys."Oh, they'll remember when they pray. For their dear mother, when she's dead, How often they to her have said,"Please, let us go and play!"Their plaintive voices came to me.From the adjoining chamber, where both wife and children I could see,When seated in my easy chair.She said, "Mother, we could go before my hair had turned to gray.""Please, mother, do not keep us now,But let us go and play!"Their mother here, until my lips can comprehend that they but strivethemselves when they long for toys."Oh, they'll remember when they pray.For their dear mother, when she's dead,How often they to her have said,"Please, let us go and play!"Their mother here, until my lips can comprehend that they but strivethemselves when they long for toys."Oh, they'll remember when they pray.For their dear mother, when she's dead,How often they to her have said,"Please, let us go and play!"Their mother here, until my lips can comprehend that they but strivethemselves when they long for toys."Oh, they'll remember when they pray.For their dear mother, when she's dead,How often they to her have said,"Please, let us go and play!"Their mother here, until my lips can comprehend that they but strivethemselves when they long for toys."Oh, they'll remember when they pray.For their dear mother, when she's dead,How often they to her have said,"Please, let us go and play!"Their mother here, until my lips can comprehend that they but strivethemselves when they long for toys."Oh, they'll remember when they pray.For their dear mother, when she's dead,How often they to her have said,"Please, let us go and play!"Their mother here, until my lips can comprehend that they but strivethemselves when they long for toys."Oh, they'll remember when they pray.For their dear mother, when she's dead,How often they to her have said,"Please, let us go and play!"Their mother here, until my lips can comprehend that they but strivethemselves when they long for toys."Oh, they'll remember when they pray.For their dear mother, when she's dead,How often they to her have said,"Please, let us go and play!"Their mother here, until my lips can comprehend that they but strivethemselves when they long for toys."Oh, they'll remember when they pray.For their dear mother, when she's dead,How often they to her have said,"Please, let us go and play!"Their mother here, until my lips can comprehend that they but strivethemselves when they long for toys."Oh, they'll remember when they pray.For their dear mother, when she's dead,How often they to her have said,"Please, let us go and play!"Their mother here, until my lips can comprehend that they but strivethemselves when they long for toys."Oh, they'll remember when they pray.For their dear mother, when she's dead,How often they to her have said,"Please, let us go and play!"Their mother here, until my lips can comprehend that they but strivethemselves when they long for toys."Oh, they'll remember when they pray.For their dear mother, when she's dead,How often they to her have said,"Please, let us go and play!"Their mother here, until my lips can comprehend that they but strivethemselves when they long for toys."Oh, they'll remember when they pray.For their dear mother, when she's dead,How often they to her have said,"Please, let us go and play!"Their mother here, until my lips can comprehend that they but strivethemselves when they long for toys."Oh, they'll remember when they pray.For their dear mother, when she's dead,How often they to her have said,"Please, let us go and play!"Their mother here, until my lips can comprehend that they but strivethemselves when they long for toys."Oh, they'll remember when they pray.For their dear mother, when she's dead,How often they to her have said,"Please, let us go and play!"

WHAT THE TREASURY STATISTICS SHOW.

The report of the Treasury Department shows that the receipts of the Government for the fiscal year, which ended June 30, 1896, were $400,475,408.78. The expenditures for the same period were $431,678,634.48. The excess of expenditures over receipts amounted to $25,103,155. Of the receipts there was derived from the duties on imports $180,021,751.67, and from internal revenue $146,820,615.66. The receipts from customs show an increase of $7,568,154.22 over 1895, and the receipts of internal revenue show an increase of $3,584,537.91 for the same period.

The value of imported dutiable goods in the last fiscal year was $369,757,470, and the value of imported free goods was $409,967,470. On the dutiable goods imported the average tariff was 39.94 per cent, and the average on dutiable and free goods together was 20.53 per cent. It will be seen from this that the tariff on all articles imported, free and dutiable, averages over 20 per cent, that is, one-fifth of their value, though over half the imports were on the free list. This tariff produces within $25,000,000 of enough revenue to meet the expenditures of the government, but it is unjust to western producers. It lets wool in free and protects with a tariff of 40 per cent woolen or worsted goods, and clothing ready made and articles of wearing apparel of every description with a tariff of 46 per cent. It also protects with a duty of 10 per cent sole and booting leather, and with a duty of 20 per cent calf skins, tanned and dressed upper leather. This shows that the eastern manufacturer is protected from foreign competition by a reasonably high tariff, while the western producers of wool and hides have to compete in the same market with foreign producers of similar commodities. Of course if an attempt is made to protect wool and hides the eastern manufacturers will object unless the tariff on manufactures of wool and of leather are protected by a high tariff. However that may be it devolves upon western Senators and Representatives in Congress to protect their constituents by a reasonable tariff on what they produce.

Our exports in the last fiscal year amounted in value to $882,606,083. This is $112,374,996 in excess of our imports and shows that the balance of trade is in our favor. Under ordinary circumstances foreign nations would owe the United States over $112,000,000, that being the excess of what we sold abroad over what we purchased abroad, yet over $112,000,000 in gold and over $60,000,000 in silver were exported to Europe last year to settle balances on bonds and other investments made by foreigners in the United States. The farmers whose surplus wheat, corn, cotton, pork and beef keep the balance of trade in our favor, derive no benefit whatever from the tariff, in fact it affects them injuriously because they have to pay a higher price for clothing and implements because of it, yet any attempt to increase the price of silver bullion so as to increase the price of wheat in India is combated by the manufacturers, whom the farmers are taxed to protect from foreign competition.

THE SURVEYOR GENERALSHIP

During the recent campaign our gold neighbor was glowing with patriotic fervor which developed into a hankering for the Surveyor General's office, when it was known that Mr. Hanna's $10,000,000 campaign fund had been used where it did the most good. With that patriotism peculiar to pie-counter politicians he worked assiduously against the interests of the State and was willing that every mine should remain closed, that every mill should rust from disuse, if he could only get a stall at the public crib. Now the particular feeding place which he desires to securer, seems to be pre-empted by C. W. Irish, and because the JOURNAL maintains the fact, he flies off the handle, as the saying is, and reiterates the stale falsehood that the editor of the JOURNAL was a candidate for the position which General Irish secured. Nothing could be farther from the truth. The editor of the JOURNAL desired Hon. George Ernst, State Senator elect from Nye county, and an old and respected citizen and practical surveyor, to get the place, and when Mr. Ernst, because of developments in his mines, which required his whole attention, drew out of the contest, his choice and the editor of the JOURNAL's choice, was Mr. Thomas Read of Eureka, also a practical surveyor.

The editor of the JOURNAL was opposed to General Irish because he was a carpet-bagger, but that breed of dog was in favor with our gold friend and as the files of his paper will prove he fawned upon the imported Surveyor General until his term of office expired. Now, however, he does not seem to want him back, at least as Surveyor General.

The editor of the JOURNAL does not care whether a resident or imported gold man gets the office, but if our Senators desire to express the sentiment of the silver men of this State they will see that none of the hypocrites, who for years pretended to be for free coinage, are confirmed to that or any other federal office in Nevada if they can prevent it.

TWO SUICIDES.
Mrs. Sarah B. Cooper and Her Daughter
End Their Existence.

SAN FRANCISCO, December 11.—Mrs. Sarah B. Cooper and her daughter, Harriet Cooper, were found dead in their home in this city this morning, with the gas turned on and with every evidence that the gas was the mode used for the intentional death of both of them. Mrs. Cooper was the President of the Kindergarten Association of Schools, and her daughter was Deputy Superintendent. Mrs. Cooper had lived here for 30 years and was widely known as an educator, writer and philanthropist. She was President of the Women's Press Association, President of the Woman's Suffrage Association, and prominent as an officer of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

For many years she had taught the largest Bible class in the city in connection with the First Congregational Church, her class numbering several hundred adults. She was also assistant pastor of the church under the pastorate of Dr. C. O. Brown. The will of Mrs. Cooper has been found in her library, and in a will written yesterday she requests that the bodies of herself and daughter be not taken to the morgue.

The Coopers had lived entirely alone except for a Chinese cook who had been in their employ for more than 20 years. He has not yet been found, but it is expected that he can throw some light on the tragedy. When the scandal concerning Dr. C. O. Brown was first spoken of, Mrs. Cooper in the early days of the trouble stood by her pastor and expressed confidence in him. Later the developments caused her to change her mind, and she and her daughter became his most prominent opponents and accusers after Mrs. Davidson. Much bitterness in church circles was engendered by Mrs. Cooper's statements when on the witness stand at the church trial, and Miss Cooper was even more pronounced than her mother in her opposition to Brown.

Mrs. Cooper had been prominent in church affairs on the Pacific coast for a generation. She often preached in Congregational churches and took an active part in all departments of Christian work. She acted as nurse during the war and her husband and their children but Hattie died at New Orleans.

The Corner is now convinced that the death of the Coopers was due to the act of the daughter Hattie, who was thus a suicide and matricide. The deed seems to have been the result of a suicidal and homicidal mania, for which Miss Cooper had suffered for several months. When she tried to commit suicide before by gas, she expressed the hope that her mother would die with her. It is supposed that Hattie arose in the night, and turning on the gas, lay down again beside her sleeping mother.

Your Boy Won't Live a Month
So Mr. Gilman Brown, of 24 Mill St., South Gardner, Mass., was told by the doctors. His son had Lung trouble, following Typhoid Malague, and he spent three hundred and seventy-five dollars with doctors, who finally gave him up, saying: "Your boy won't live a month." He tried Dr. King's New Discovery and a few bottles restored him to health and enabled him to go to work a perfectly well man. He says he owes his present good health to the use of Dr. King's New Discovery, and knows it to be the best in the world for Lung trouble. Trial Bottles Free at S. J. Hodgkinson's Drug Store.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. Then is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant syrup laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all that it is sold in every drug store.

It is the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be compelled to take the most skillful physician, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed, everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

WEATHER BULLETIN.
Temperature Below Normal and Rainfall Above.

Copyright, 1896, by W. T. Foster.)
ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 11.—My last bulletin gave forecasts of the storm wave to cross the continent from the 16th to 20th.

The next disturbance will reach the Pacific Coast about 20th, cross the west of the Rockies country by the close of the 21st, the Great Central Valleys from the 22d to 24th, and the Eastern States the 25th.

The warm wave will cross the west of Rockies country about the 20th, great central valleys 22d, Eastern States 23d. The cool wave will cross the west of Rockies country about the 23d, great central valleys 25th, Eastern States 27th.

The temperature of the week ending the 19th will average below normal and rainfall above. When reference is made in these bulletins as to precipitation, snow is always included with rain.

My forecasts for November were almost perfect up to and including the 26th. Then the reversals came in, which, although warnings had been published that they were coming, came earlier than expected turning the last four days of November weather wrong side up.

No very serious mistake had been made in the forecasts since those for January 1896. The forecast errors for the last four or five days in November are frankly admitted. I had calculated the coldest days for about the 22d, leaving out the last four days of the month, about the 22d were the coldest days.

The December reverses were expected to continue about three weeks and if this estimate proves correct the direct weather changes should be restored about the 16th to 18th, giving moderate weather about those dates and 23d with cold waves about the 20th and 25th. After that date and through January regular or direct weather changes are expected.

PROF. RUSSELL'S LECTURE.

The leading scientific paper of Europe, published in London, is taking an interest in the theory that the moon has much to do with weather changes and publishes Prof. Russell's lecture. Prof. Russell is president of the Sydney, Australia, astronomical observatory. His statements are of such great interest that the following quotations are made from his lecture as published in Nature:

"In the whole period, from the foundation of the colony of New South Wales to the present year, i. e., 108 years it is certainly very noteworthy that the most pronounced droughts recur with great regularity—that is at every 19 years throughout the 108 years. Indian droughts seem to have coincided with Australian droughts in many instances.

"The investigation had become interesting, and seemed to promise to show the exact year of the great drought in this country, of which there was abundant evidence when the colonists landed here, both in the fact that to the south of Sydney all the very large trees were dead and between them were growing young trees; and the story of the blacks who said that the river Hunter had dried up, that all the greater trees had died, and most of the blacks, that those who survived had obtained drinking water from the mountain springs. I had long wanted to find out when this terrible drought in this colony took place, and the Indian record showed that the extensive drought had been repeated in 1769-70, which probably fixes the date, for the middle of the eighteenth century was very dry generally, all over the world.

"These intervals in which our droughts are found repeated are surprising, but I am not unaware of the differences of opinion in regard to chronology, but take the dates as given and it is remarkable how exactly they fit in. But there is another point of importance connected with these dates, and probably you have not noticed it. Pharaoh's drought was predicted, and a Jew was made chief man under the king, and he was doubtless versed in much wisdom of the priests and carried that wisdom to the Jewish priests, who did not forget it, as the figures make manifest, and if warning of such evils could be depended upon, it is not likely they would forget it.

"Those learned in Assyrian antiquities tell us that the book containing "Observations of Bel," the oldest astronomical book of that part of the world, was ordered to be kept by the king, 3,800 B. C. That book shows that they kept a record of astronomical and all other events, that they had discovered the nineteen year's cycle of eclipses, and we are told that it was a doctrine with them, that one event caused another, and all astronomical and meteorological observations were thus bound up together. Under such conditions I do not think it would be possible for them to avoid finding in the droughts a similar period to that in the eclipses, i. e., nineteen years, but even if they did it would have been impossible for those who kept the Nilometer of Egypt to avoid finding in it the heights of the Nile floods, which were of such vital importance and so carefully recorded.

FOOTBALL CASUALTIES.

The Game Said to be More Brutal Than Prize Fighting.

Whitcomb, Herbert, San Francisco; swallowed set of false teeth during the excitement of play.

Woolly, Frank, Tower, Minn.; hit over the head with a brick thrown by an Indian; scalp badly cut.

Who can read this list and say that football as played at our colleges is not a barbarous game! There is more brutality in one football game than in a dozen prize fights. But a broken limb or a life crushed out is a small matter.

NEVADA MADE MILLIONAIRES.

The special administrators of the estate of the late James G. Fair, have filed a final account. It consists of 640 closely type-written pages and it gives a specific description of all the property, real and personal, of the estate.

It shows the amount of cash passing through the hands of the special administrators, during the period of their administration, which extended from January 2, 1895, to November 16, 1896, to have been $4,633,455.69, and it gives the total value of the estate administered upon as $16,633,455.69, not one dollar of which is in the State of Nevada.

This furnishes a striking example of the manner in which Nevada has been treated by the men whom it made millionaires. Fair, Mackay, Flood and many others made their millions in Nevada. Instead of expending even a small part of the great wealth which they acquired in Nevada, in developing the resources of the State, their millions were invested elsewhere, and with the exception of the Sharon-Mills interests in the Virginia & Truckee and Carson & Colorado roads, none of the Nevada made millionaires, have done ought to benefit the State. James G. Fair, who made a fortune here and who died worth over $16,000,000, did not have a cent invested in Nevada and did not bequeath a dollar to any public institution in the State. They cared nothing for the State or its people; they treated it as a boy does an orange, sucked it as dry as possible and then dropped it.

The Funeral of the Late Attorney General.

*Gobin of Purdee, made delirious by blow on head.

Hinckley, captain of the Beloit team; kicked in the small of the back and left arm badly bruised.

Hooper, James, South Bend; lungs knocked out of place for a short time; not serious.

Davis, Benjamin R., South Chicago; body badly crushed and will probably die.

Graham, Edward, Boston; right leg dislocated in game with Chicago Athletic Club.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

THE MARATHON RACE.

The Wild Excitement of the Greeks When Their Countrymen Won It.

The Greeks are novices in the matter of athletic sports and had not looked for much success for their own country. One event only seemed likely to be theirs from its very nature—the long distance run, from Marathon, a prize for which had been newly founded by M. Michel Bouc, a member of the French institute, in commemoration of that soldier of antiquity who ran all the way to Athens to tell his fellow citizens of the happy issue of the battle. The distance from Marathon to Athens is 42 kilometers. The road is rough and stony. The Greeks had trained for this run for a year past. Even in the remote districts of Thessaly young peasants prepared to enter as contestants. In three cases it is said that the enthusiasm and the impetuosity of these young fellows cost them their lives, so exaggerated were their preparatory efforts. As the great day approached women offered up prayers and votive tapers in the churches that the victor might be a Greek.

The wish was fulfilled. A young peasant named Loucas from the village of Marathon was the winner in 3 hours and 55 minutes. He reached the goal fresh and in fine form. He was followed by two other Greeks. The excellent Australian sprinter Flack and the Frenchman Lermusiaux, who had been in the lead the first 36 kilometers, had fallen out by the way. Then Loucas came into the stadium, the crowd, which numbered 60,000 persons, rose to its feet like one man, swayed by extraordinary excitement. The king of Servia, who was present, will probably not forget the sight he saw that day. A flight of white pigeons was let loose, women waved fair and handkerchiefs, and some of the spectators who were nearest to Loucas left their seats and tried to reach him and carry him in triumph. He would have been suffocated if the crown prince and Prince George had not bodily led him away. A lady who stood next to me unfastened her watch, a gold one set with pearls, and sent it to him; an unknown presented him with an order good for 365 free meals, and a wealthy citizen had to be dissuaded from signing a check for 10,000 francs to his credit. Loucas himself, however, when he was told of this generous offer, refused it. The sense of honor, which is very strong in the Greek peasant, thus saved the nonprofessional spirit from a very great danger. — "The Olympic Games of 1904," by Baron Pierre de Coubertin, in Couture et Justice.

Foreigners are frequently impressed with the extreme good nature of our people in trying circumstances and the patience with which they endure hardships and discomforts which spring from thoughtlessness and injudiciousness. Now, patience and good nature are excellent qualities, and the field for their exercise is a wide one. The grumbling disposition, which fruitlessly complains of and magnifies each passing annoyance, disgracing and irritating every one in the vicinity, is worthy of sincere reprobation. At the same time there are limits beyond which an easy good nature ceases to be a virtue. We plume ourselves upon it and compare its soothing effects with the influence stirred up by an opposite course, to the entire advantage of the former. And in this we are correct just as long as it does not pander to injustice.

To smile indulgently at a wrong that calls for correction, to bear with equanimity what ought never to be borne at all, to submit patiently to evils that spring from unfairness and to influence others to do the same plainly tend to foster the continuance of wrongdoing and to make those engaged in it self-satisfied and secure. Patient endurance, so estimable under certain circumstances, may under others be an actual injury to society. From the resistance to an injurious fashion or custom up to the correction of grave abuses, the earliest seeker after justice is a true philanthropist and demands the esteem and co-operation of his fellow-men.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Tobacco and Color Blindness.

"Color blindness is on the increase," said Dr. D. L. Bliss of New York. "The causes of this defect in vision that may be otherwise perfect are not all very well understood. It would seem that the use of tobacco had a good deal to do with it. I have examined a great many for color blindness, having on several occasions been employed by railroad companies to do so, and in every instance where the man examined was found to be color blind he was a user of tobacco. Women are seldom afflicted in this way, hence it must be caused by something that men do which women do not. What cases exist among women will be found to be inherited from their ancestors. I have never known a woman to be color blind whose father was free from the defect. I am a smoker and my perceptions of color are unusually good, so that it is not impossible that a man may use tobacco without such an effect, but I believe a large proportion of the cases are caused by tobacco."—Washington Star.
